Washington, Feb. 25.—Mr. Vest of Missouri started a debate in the Senate on the reciproc-ity clause of the McKinley bill, when, according to notice, he called up Mr. Hale's resolution requesting copies of agreements with other countries relating to interchange of trade. and moved an amendment inquiring whether any negotiations had been unsuccessfully inaugurated to secure reciprocity with Mexico. and if so, what had been the cause of such. Mr. Vest began with a criticism of the speech made in New York last night by the Hon. John W. Foster of the State Department, whom he designated as "Secretary" Foster. He said Mr. Foster claimed that reciprocity with the South American States had been brought about by releasing from recommodities which did not come into competition with the United States. He (Mr. Vest) would undertake to show that in ten months of reciprocity with Brazil the only increase of exports had been in steam only increase of exports had been in steam engines and machinery, upon which Brazil did not charge any import duty and had not pilor to recirrecity.

Mr. Hate-meethed Mr. Vest's amendment to his resolution, out suggested that the resolution pent, a over.

Mr. Vesthres made a similar request, saying that his side of the chamber would have something to sar when the question came up again. The resolution was then hid aside.

The resolution was then hid aside.

The resolution was then in discussing the Claggett-Dutois election contest, and a resolution was adopted allowing Claggett to address the Senate in his own lichait.

The House spent the entire day in the discussion of the contested election case of Craig ya. Stewart from the Twenty-fourth district of Pennsylvania, but no action was taken.

Representative "Buck" Kilgore of Texas has not joined the Hill forces, but admits that Mr. Cleveland has no show for the nomina tion. He said to-day:

tion. Ho said to-day:

"I see nothing whatever in Mr. Hill's speech at Albany. It is just like his Elmira speech, and can be construed to suit who it pleases. He lays down no great principle, he sounds no emphatic slogan. Not in the least do I regard the action at Albany as relegating Mr. Cleveland to the background. It is not to be regarded that way at all. He went to the Convention in 1834 with Tammany opposed to him. just as Tilden did. If Tammany comprises the Democratic virtues and strength that it claims it can as easily carry the State for Cleveland as Hill. It would seem however, that the logic of the situation would relegate both of thom probably to the rear, and then we will have to find some good Western Democrat. Excuse me, I'm not speculating on who he will be."

It soems quite possible that Representative Catchings's prediction that Congress will adjourn by Juir I nay be realized if the discussion of the silver and tariff questions does not occasion undue delay. The preparation of the appropriation wills, which are usually the realized of the extension of long sessions of Congress, is, on the whole, in a more advanced condition at this time than at several of the more recent long sessions of Congress, thanks to the pressure brought to bear upon the various committees by Speakor Crisp: and the prospects are that this Congress will make a creditable record for the promptness and despatch with which it will have performed this important part of its work. The Hillfary Academy bill has sirendy passed the House, and the Urgent Deficiency bill is now in conference, and will doubtless be agreed upon by the conference of 10th houses within a few days. The Indian Appropriation bill is before the House, and will doubtless be agreed upon by the conference and will promptly be passed early next week. The District of Columbia Appropriation bill are about really for presentation to the House, and the trainions Appropriation bill are about really for presentation to the House, and the under Civil bill will be reported within a cought, much carlier than usual. Work will be ought on the Legislative and Fortification with within a very short time. The Navai and the under way. This will leave only the General Deficiency bill, and that necessarily is the last bill to be prepared and passed. All the committees having charge of appropriations are working industriously, and, if their present activity is maintained until all the bills are completed, there should not be much delay on the part of the benaton in considering the results of their labors.

He lounged about on the sofas, first on the Republican and then on the Democratic side. It was Mr. Clagett of Idaho, who is contesting the seat of Senator Dubois. By a vote of 40 to 1 the Senate granted him the courtesy of speaking in his own behalf. Two hours were allowed him to present his case, and it was expected that he would get a chance to be heard to-day. Those who are familiar with him say he has a peculiar style of oratory which is entirely original and exceedingly attractive. Mr. Clagett did not get an opportunity to present his views to the Senate to-day. He will probably be recognized to-morrow, and it is said he will make an interesting speech.

MISS JOHNSON STILL IN JAIL.

Judge Dubots Will Decide To-day - He

MEMPHIS, Fob. 25.-In the Lillie Johnson habeas corpus case to-day. Father Veale, pastor of St. Patrick's Church, in which the prisoner is a communicant, testified to her reputation for peace and quietude. Dr. Henning, the family physician of the Johnsons testified to her general ill health, and gave his opinion that further confinement might re ult seriously. This ended the testimony is

Lillie Johnson is ill, norvous, and unstrung as the result of the ordeal she has undergone the last three days. She entered the court senicely able to walk to her chair at the bar. Attorneys Fatterson and Gantt spoke at some length, contending that only such cases were unballable where there was not reasonable doubt of guilt, and that all cases were ballable when the accused had taken no active part in

As Mr. Patterson pictured Miss Johnson's quiet home life and compared it to her present position the prisoner began to weep. The obs of the father and daughter could be heard sons of the latter and daughter could be heard throughout the court room. Sympathetic ladles began to weep, but the Court frowned. Judge Dubois never shows emotion. He said he would decide to-morrow whether he would grant bail or refuse it, and then ordered the pisoner taken back to jail. Miss Johnson started to rise, but fell back fainting in a chair. Her father and brother picked her up and carried her from the room.

prisoner taken cace to gair, alles sonneys started to rise, but fell back fainting in a chair. Her father and brother picked her up and carried her from the room.

Public sentiment has changed somewhat in Miss Johnson's favor. The failure of the State to show her an accomplice by any other than circumstantial evidence is a point considered decidedly in her favor. The general opinion, however, is that Judge Dubois will look at the case from a standpoint of coid law, and will not allow any sympathy to influence his decision. He was in a bad humor as he left the court this morning. On one of the front benches in the court had sat a negro woman of bad reputation. The Judge saw her, and, though nearly cory evil woman in this city has been in attendance, he singled this one out and ordered her to be removed from the court room. After the close of the seasion she met him and asked him why he had put her out. The Judge began to explain, when the woman interrupted him with an impertinent remark. He drew back his band and knocked her down. When she got up the Judge had gone into his room and slammed the door.

One of the peculiarities of the trial of to-day was the quoting of elaborate decisions from Col. H. Clay King's digest of the crimical law. Col. King, the author, is in the jail under sentence of death for hexing killed David Paston, a lawyer, one year ago. This killing was caused remotely on account of Mrs. Gideon J. Pillow, wife of the celebrated Confederate General.

him, and, that when Senator Palmer at the Hotel Royal fire. Vaughen is an athletic oung man who has always been noted in the Fire Patrol for his daring. At the Hotel Royal fire he rescued Proprietor Phelps, his wife and son, and another lodger from their rooms in the Sixth avenue front by forming a bridge of his body from window to window. Vaugher also rescued C. W. Kline from a room on the fifth floor on the Fortieth street side of the burning building by another astonishing feat. He was lowered head first by four men from a window of the adjoining house until he could swing and get hold of Kline and haul him from the window sill on which he was standing. Mr. Kline has men who weighs over 200 pounds, while Vaughen barely touches 140. Mr. Kline has written a number of letters to his rescuer, and has also sent him a check for $50. Yaughen is the sixth man in the Fire Patrol to be honored by a gold medal, which Superintendent Hull says is given only in exceptional cases. The last to receive onetwas Lieut. McCann of 4 Patrol, who climbed up the blinds on the front of a burning tenement and rescued five children from a third-story window.

Tiffany is now making Vaughen's medal, which will be presented, probably, at the next regular meeting of the Board of Underwriters. Four of the other patrolmen who have received gold medals are living, and they will be presented to the members of Vaughen's company. President Sam P. In reply to this question the Mayor said: Both this city and the city of Brooklyn will be benefited by the great increase in travelling facilities that will be afforded by additional bridges. The population of both cities will be increased and the interests of the public gen erally will be furthered."

three miles of an elevated railroad structure in this city, without regard to the protests of citizens whose property might be injured, the Mayor said:

"Buch a clause is unconstitutional. The rights of property owners cannot be taken from them. If they are injured in any way the courts will see that no rights are illegally treatwassed upon."

"Don't you think that the power which the bill gives the proposed bridge corporation to run trains and conduct traffic over the bridges in any way it pleases, without regard to any action of the municipal authorities, may prove detrimental to the public interests."

"So far as that goos," replied the Mayor. "I am content to trust to the asgacity of the legislators. I believe the gontlemen in Albany have the interests of the public at heart, and that they will do nothing that will in any way work to the disadvantage of the public.

The Mayor added that it was absolutely necessary to increase the present systems of transit between this city and Brooklyn. He acknowledged that the city of Brooklyn would be benefited more by the proposed bridges than this city would be, but this, he said, should not be a sufficient reason for a protest by this city against the bill.

I believe, said the Mayor, "that the bill as it stands will not work against the interests of this city."

possible excuse for deliberately disposing of the city's property without just compensation."

The Comptroller talked freely about the matter yesterday. He said that such legislation is deplorable.

"Persons either as individuals or when composing a corporation," he said, "should he made to pay for valuable franchises. The city should grant no such privileges without receiping a fair compensation for them. The amount involved in the venture does not affect the matter, providing the returns are adequate. There is a vast number of valuable franchises on this island, and the tax rate, in consequence, should be the lowest in the world, and it would be if the city received proper compensation for all the privileges it has the power to bestow. I appreciate the fact that we must have bridges, and therefore I am in favor of them, providing the city shares in the profits of the enterprise. I have not considered whether this bill favors Brooklyn at the expense of this city. It naturally follows that any bridge across the East fliver will benefit Brooklyn more than it will New York."

BLACK BASS FOR ENGLISH WATERS. Four Hundred Live Luke Erte Bass Start

Among the passengers who sailed for Liver pool on the steamer Britannie on Wednesday was James Annin, Jr., of Caledonia, Livingston county, the well-known fish culturist. His trip is made as a result of the great interest wealthy and titled English sportsmen are taking in the introduction of the American black bass in England, and he had in charge a consignment of 400 of these fish, which were ordered by Charles T. Pelham-Clinton of Moor Court, Stroud. Gloucestershire, through Mr. E. G. Blackford of Fulton Market, this city. The superior qualities of the black bass as a game fish were first made known in Eng land by the success of the Duke of Sutherland in stocking waters on his estate at Strathmore with the bass. The original stock was sent over nine years ago by Mr. Blackford in charge of Mr. George Shepherd Page, the captor of the of Mr. George Shepherd Page, the captor of the famous ten-and-a-half pound trout in liange-lay Lake. Maine, some years ago. The result of that transplanting of this lavorite American game lish to English waters was so satisfactory that two years ago the Duke of Newcastle ordered a lot of young base from Mr. Biackford's stocking waters on his estates. The order was filled by the shipment of 1.000 fry, from two to three inches in length. They were taken over by Monrio Green, Superintendent of the State hatchery at Caledonia, and but one or two of the base died on the voyage.

These his, whose name he does not mention. last in charge of Mr. Annih were ordered by Yelham-Clinton for the waters of a friend of his, whose name he does not mention. Those bass were well grown, weighing from one-half to three-quarters of a pound each. They were caught through the ice in Lake Eric, at Sandusky, by Mr. Annin's mee, and arrived in New York from that place on Tuesday right, in charge of H. E. Annin. Bass of this size are not as desirable for shipment as the small fry, owing to the larger amount of oxygen they exhaust from the water, but they were the smallest that could be obtained at this season. They were shipped in twenty-live fifteen-gallon cans, sixteen fish in each can. The water will be kept at the proper temperature by packing ice about the cans when necessary, and oxygenated by pumping in air. Mr. Annin has helpers with him who will watch the cans and treat the water night and day during the voyage.

The consignment will be met by Pelham-Clinton at Liverpool, at which point the fish will have cost the consignee not less than $2.50 each. Thus far black bass have been placed in lakes only in England.

A few days before sailing with these black bass Mr. Annin returned from an extraordinary professional trip to the Adirondack wilderness, having taken to the Racquette Lake waters, owned by the well-known New York sportsman. W. W. Durant, 5000 yearling brook trout for stocking those waters. Mr. Durant owns $0,000 acres of game and fish preserve in Hamilton county. The nearest railroad station is lifty miles from the point these trout were to be turned into the water. The snow was three feet deep, and the transportation of the fish was extremely difficult, but only a few were lost. They were taken in from the railrond on aleds.

Mr. Blackford on Tuesday received from the Pacilic coast eight of the rare and beautiful boily Varien trout, natives of far Western waters. The largest one weighed by pounds, the smallest 6 pounds. Mr. Blackford sent one of the largest of these trout to Washington.

shots were exchanged, but no one was burt, and then A. B. Harris disappeared. He has since turned up and tells the police the following story:

"Two weeks ago last Friday Edward and his wile were at my house. I was away, and his wile went down town for something, and then Edward took advantage of my wile and assaulted her, in spite of her protests and struggies. I did not know of this until a week ago, when my wife told me of it. I was mad enough then to do anything, and asked her why she did not tell me of it before, and sho and it was because she was afraid that it would lead to another crime and that I might get killed.

"I decided to give my brother a chance to leave town, but he would not do it. So, not being able to bear his prasence any longer, I determined to take the law into my own hands and kill him."

Edward has admitted that his brother's story was true, except that he did not assault the woman.
